Stagecraft: Brian Bress, Deville Cohen, Kate Gilmore, Mary Reid Kelley
June 10 – September 10, 2011
Curated by David Louis Norr; organized by USFCAM.

The University of South Florida Contemporary Art Museum is pleased to present Stagecraft: Brian Bress, Deville Cohen, Kate Gilmore, Mary Reid Kelley. Stagecraft brings together a group of artists who share an impulse to re-imagine and re-script our relationships to everyday objects and characters. Working with a do-it-yourself directness across the fields of sculpture, theater, performance, cinematography and animation, the artists in Stagecraft delve into absurdity to make the familiar strange once again. In the process, they present us with a skillful meditation on art-making itself.

Comprising videos, drawings and installations by the four artists, Stagecraft includes Gilmore’s Buster, an original work commissioned by USFCAM. The installation consists of more than 200 ceramic vessels fabricated by USF art students and destroyed by Gilmore, releasing a flood of colored paint, in a performance captured on video and displayed in the exhibition.
